THE GREAT EXPOSITION.

LEADING BUSINESS MEN PLEDGE THE FIRST SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Stock Certificates to be issued to the Amount of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars to Buy Shelley Park and Put Up A Permanent Building For the Big Show.

There is no longer room for doubt that there will be a grand Kansas City and Southwestern exposition, that it will be held in a magnificently building covering Shelley park, that it will be inaugurated in this year of grace, 1887, and that it will be so complete and comprehensive as to illuminate the resources, advantages and possibilities of the great Southwest as vividly as to be a source of unheard-of prosperity and development.

A number of prominent men, among whom were Mr. E. L. Martin, Mr. T. B. Bulleene, Mr. W. E. Winner, Mr. Louis Hammerschlag, Mr. Isaac Whittaker and Col. T. S. Case, met Mr. John W. Ryckman, projector of the exposition scheme, at his office this morning, and a guarantee fund of $50,000 was practically pledged to the nucleus of the enterprise.

Stock certificates to the amount of $300,000 will be issued to raise money for buying the park and erecting the buildings. It is expected that within two weeks every dollar of the money will have been marketed.

Messrs. Martin and Bulleene were appointed a committee to decide upon the manner of raising the stock and raising the money. On Monday the formal subscriptions will probably begin.

The gentlemen present at this morning's meeting manifested great enthusiasm. Mr. Bulleene voiced the prevailing sentiment when he said: "I will go down for a big lump of the stock and, if necessary, I am ready to do as I did with the Parade Fund subscription, double up."

Mr. Ryckman in a brief but vigorous address outlined the plan of the proposed exposition. He urged that the scheme could be carried out effectively in a few months of active exertion than in two years of forced intercessory dilatory work, and demonstrated that the exposition can be opened all completed, next fall better than a year hence. He spoke of the importance of the enterprise from a public spirited point of view and expressed the opinion that the returns from the great show itself, and from the rental of the building during the idle months, would make the investment a profitable one to the shareholders, as is the case with the Chicago exposition building.

The four heirs to Shelley Park have been visited, and all but one have signed a proposition to sell the land for an amount not larger than $25,000, and possibly as low as $100,000. Members of the city council have given assurance that they will favorably receive Shelley park from the legal complications involved in it, in case prompt guarantee is given that the same will be used for exposition purposes.

At noon to-day a committee visited Mr. Ryckman and requested his presence at a meeting of agricultural implement men, at the office of the Mexican consul at 2:30 o'clock, to discuss the exposition.

The objects of the Kansas City and Southwestern exposition company are as follows:

1. To exhibit concisely and clearly, every product, agricultural, mineral, or manufactured, of the United States.

2. To demonstrate the fact, that, by virtue of location and facilities, Kansas City must soon become the greatest live stock market in the world.

3. To make available the commercial and manufacturing metropolis of the West.

4. To exhibit to the world Kansas City's unsurpassed value as a railroad center.

5. To invite foreign trade to fill the yet-unoccupied fields of development, commerce and manufacture, at the great section tributary to Kansas City.

6. To answer every question that a visitor can ask regarding Kansas City and its vicinity concerning the products of the soil, the transportation facilities, the people, the minerals, the rivers, the manufacturers—every thing affecting population, development and industry.

7. To furnish an exhibition that even when confined to a small space will attract people from all parts of the world.

8. To instruct the world regarding the south-west.

9. To furnish a building that may be used in the annuals of the annual exposition, as a hall for conventions and great public meetings of all sorts.

Wants Part of His Inheritance.

John Roger obtained a decree of divorce five years ago from his wife, Little Roger, on the ground of desertion in Kansas. Two years afterwards his wife began proceedings against him for divorce in this city, he having in the meantime been married to another woman.

He contested the suit. Soon after Roger inherited $10,000 by the death of his father, and now Little is trying to get a divorce and alimony from him. The court has ruled that the grounds on which he procured his divorce in Kansas were false. Judge Gill has taken the case under consideration.

The Oriental Parade.

Something About the Order—The Line of March—Fantastic Costumes.

To-night the Order of the Orient will give a grand parade in honor of the people who have aided us in our war with Merriam to-morrow.

He paid $12 but the contractor to whom he was sent home to pay him back. The contractor, however, did not pay him back to the city to procure the agent.

John Cowherd, who bought his right to go from one man who had paid $2 to G. A. Laun, another Union avenue employment agent, was also refused work and his money was taken.

Seventy-Five Men to Begin Work Upon it

Judge Broadbent, attorney for the Chien-

It is believed that the plan was to become involved in the other plan.

friendly friendships, like those of LONGFELLOW and EMERSON or of GOETHE and SCHILLER.

There is one great name in literature that enthusiastically engrossed his contemporaries who never had the nobleness of this side of the grave to recognize the praise to which he was entitled. The men who played these parts of generosity and ingratiation were THACKERAY and DICKENS. It has long been known that THACKERAY was ever generous in mimicry of his language of DICKENS's novels. His society has been attested by the publication in "Scribner's Magazine" of his private correspondence. In these letters, which were not then written for the public eye, he was hearty in his compliments of "David Copperfield" and the author of that great story. In one letter he says: "Have you read David Copperfield?" Oh, it is charming! DICKENS! It has some of the very prettiest touches—those inimitable DICKENS touches which make such a great man of him; and the reading of the book has done another author a great deal of good."

Often was THACKERAY liberal in passing encomiums upon DICKENS. DICKENS took the golden words, but made no return for them until the cloths were falling upon the grave of him who had written and spoken them.

BEAUTIFUL BELLS.

The stars shone out, the silvery moon
The eastern sky was climbing,
And in the abyss its lurk high
While we—in sweet forgetfulness
Whistled in hand with thoughtless joy.
This sweet repose was singing—

"Beautiful, beautiful bells,
How sweetly they sing, how lovely,
Chime on, forever, sweet silver bells."

HAD the inter-state commerce law existed fifteen years ago, the greatest and most merciless monopoly in America could not have gained a foothold. Discrimination in transportation rates was the mighty weapon that enabled the Standard Oil company to destroy every competitor and to obtain absolute control of the petroleum market.

It is better to keep a new city clean than to let the city grow old and filthy and attempt to clean it. This may be demonstrated by reference to the results in cities in England. When sanitary measures were introduced, the death rate in the newer districts of the city was reduced one half while in the older portions the death rate was lowered only one-third. These facts argue that the sanitary system of a city should begin while a city is young and before it becomes thoroughly saturated with filth.

HENRY WATTERSON's speech before the Democratic state convention of Kentucky, was good reading, but was it open and manly? Without striking anybody in the face directly, it abounded in invectives hurled at President CLEVELAND. If WATTERSON is the President's friend, as the editor has professed, and it is the function of the friend to criticise the friend on paper and stab him by invectives in public speeches, then WATTERSON has faithfully attested his friendship. These things he has done.

SORROW is not welcome in the palace, but it is still more dreadful in the homes of the poor. The frightful mine explosion at Nanaimo, in British Columbia, has left desolate many heartstones. Over one hundred white men were killed. There are fifty mourning widows and one hundred and thirty children made orphans. Seeing such destruction of life and so much suffering suddenly visited upon the innocent, one is tempted to believe in that dark saying: "Sorrow and suffering is the badge of the race."

KANSAS CITY is in the infancy of her stock trade and packing industry but it is inevitable that the center for these businesses shall be shifted from Chicago to this point. All the vast region to the west and more especially to the southwest of the city may be said to be opening up its resources. Railroads are penetrating the wilderness, tillers of the soil are going forward to occupy the land, and new towns are taking their places as prospective cities. A few car�es herders will be supplied by many small farmers, and the stock production will be increased and improved. All this new field of wealth will be tributary to Kansas City and serves to designate it as one of the great trade centers of the United States.

WHILE the inter-state bill was pending in Congress railroad corporations made it their business to obstruct its progress. Now that it is the law of the land they continue their hostility to the act. But their efforts to defeat the intent of the law are failing. The underlying principle of the measure that railroads shall not restrain the action of the nation as they may determine, is unrestricted and unimpaired by congressional authority. The people may agree that the present law should be amended, but they will never consent to yield the principle upon which it is founded. While the committee is adapting the law to the business of these corporations, it would be wise if the railroads would recognize the principles upon which the law is based and adjust themselves to that principle.

LITERARY SQUABBLE.

Greater than I—Is that your cry?
And men will live to see it;
Well if it be so—so, you know;
And if it be so, so be it.

—Tenneyson.

Ambitious authors, in times past, were not wont take the poet's philosophical view of the efforts of their contemporaries. Many of them let loose the pen of stinging criticism, not caring what evil might be done.

BYRON in his "Scotch Reviewers" mercilessly lampooned WARDWORTH, KEATE and other of his contemporaries. The tenor and diction of KEATE was so severely lashed by BYRON and other critics that it has been said this harshness drove him to an early grave. PESTON was bitter in his denunciation of LONGFELLOW, accusing him of plagiarism and weakness. BUTLER tried to hinder the rise of TENNYSON, which extorted from the laureate in reply the vigorous poem entitled "The Spotted Letter," and some of them ran:

Little is to be said,
Men neglect your pages;
I have not much of yours or mine
I like best, and you like best.

PULLMAN HEIGHTS.

PUCKETT

ROAD.

Lots in Pullman Heights will prove a paying investment to purchasers for following reasons: They are only a short walk from Rosedale, a growing manufacturing town, and the depot of the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf R.R., whence there is quick transit to the city.

They are near the great Southwest Boulevard and the Dummy Line about to be built thereon to Kansas City.

They are on the Shawnee Boulevard, along which the Dummy Line to connect with the Grand Ave. Cable will run. And they are beautiful lots, on high, level land, commanding a fine view of miles of pretty country.
